THE INCOMING ADMINISTRATION

HE CABINET OF MR. LINCOLN COMPLETED

Wassington, March 2, 1861. net vexation has at last come to an end, to the rest relief of all concerned. This morning Mr. Cameron st over his squeamishness, and signified his readiness to when it at once became settled that Seward. Smith, Chase, Cameron, Blair and Welles would nte the personnel of the Cabinet. A definite maign of departments to the last two was postponed, owing a absence of Mr. Welles. His arrival this evening, pecial train from Baltimore, in company with George m, Jr., of New York; E. S. Cleveland, of Connecticut M. R. Pauleson, of New Jersey, and the irrepressi-tac W. S. The between Blair and Wurter Davis was very close and tested, but a coup domain was achieved to day in of Blair by the arrival of a delegation of about forty landers, including all the republican electors of the The delegation waited on Mr. Lincoln, and a for. ble and formal declaration was made that Blair, and Davis, was the true representative republican of the 5. The representations made to Mr. Lincoln about 25, through the chairman of the delegation, Mr. Cork-were to the effect that if Mr. Davis should be ceted as a Cabinet councillor, it would revive the rit of "plug uglyism" in Baltimore, and destroy ever the republican enevement in the State. Mr. scoln on this stamped his foot and declared that his and was now made up, and that he would not be further siluenced by the people who were endeavoring to force avis into his Cabinet. I have it from good authority that both Gilmer and Etheridge could have gone into the Cabinet had they not required positive assurances as to the policy of the adon in reference to Southern matters. The Interior Department was offered to Mr. Cameron, but he declined it. The War Department was then offered him, which, after consultation with his friends, he decided to accept. Mr. Cameron has been severely and unjustly pursued, and Mr. Lincoln is highly complimented for resisting all opposition and retaining Mr. Cameron in the Cabinet.

Mr. Chase was also hotly pursued, but Mr. Lincoln bas resisted his opponents, and made a Cabinet for himself.

This evening Mr. Lincoin dined with the Bremen Minister. Between nine and ten in the evening Mrs. Lincoln received a few of her friends, but the crowd was so great that it was impossible to open the Presidential re-meption rooms to all who paid their respects.

There appears to be little faith, in Presidential circles, that the Southern dimentice can be satisfactorily adjusted. The probability of keeping the border slave States within the Union is thought to be slight, in 'the face of the impossibility of according to their demands.

I reiterate my agrecation, that the general conviction of Mr. Lincoln's habitual illinois advisers is, that attempts to re-inforce Fort Sumter will be unade, and orders to have the revenues collected by the Gulf squadron early after the inauguration.

RECONSTRUCTION OF THE PEDERAL UNION.

We have already called attention (says the Vicksburg Whag) to a test vote, taken some days since, on a proposition looking to the future reconstruction of the federal union, on a more perfect and equitable basis. A still more decisige vote was given last Saturday, which would seem to indicate that Missassippi does not despair of a reformation of the republic. Mr. Ellett, of Claiborne, who has recently jumped from conservation to the farthest extreme of gadicalism, offered the following resolution:—Resolved, By the people of the State of Mississippi, in Convention assembled, That the reconstruction of the Union of the United States of America is impracticable and unadvisable, and that hereafter Mississippi ought to confederate only with States having similar domestic institutions to her own.
